Title of the Ph. D.		“ An analytical study on the effect of computation of inflation rate based on WPI and CPI in India”
Salient features of your Ph.D. research work (Not more than 100 words):		The researcher under take the effect of computation of inflation rate based on WPI and CPI in India. CPI data are collected from the retailers which often indicate larger price fluctuations compared to wholesale prices. CPI inflation is known as retail inflation. The CPI thus reflects the inflation level for consumers and the weights given to each item is in accordance with the consumption pattern of consumers. There is variation between WPI and CPI inflation with WPI being higher. Food which has been major contributor to inflation has higher weight in CPI than WPI. WPI & CPI differ in terms of their weighting pattern. As the retail market receives commodities from wholesale market, it is expected that the change in the prices of commodities in wholesale market would normally transmit to the retail market.
